

Connecting with our patients and our community

March 2023

Message from the Administrator

March is the month we celebrate the contributions of our Medical Staff to our organization and personal lives. Although we appreciate our team throughout the year, March is the month we take extra time to recognize our dedicated team of providers who willingly give up their family time, get up in the middle of the night to respond to our health crises, miss family events, deliver our babies, monitor our health and wellbeing, and hold our hand when we are in emotional and physical pain. These are Physicians, Advanced Practice Registerd Nurse, Physician Assistants, and Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists.

Our community is blessed with a Medical Staff that truly cares for their patients. You are not a number. They know you, your kids, your parents, and your in-laws. They understand the significance of family. They understand the stress of farm life, being pulled in multiple directions, and the importance of faith in our lives.

As we look to the future we know we are grounded by our dedicated team of providers. Please join us in thanking them for their service.

Kiley Floyd, CEO

Thank you to our NVCH Medical Team who are leading the way!

Healthy Lifestyle for Older Adults

Men and women are living longer, enjoying energetic and active lifestyles well into their 80s and 90s. Study after study confirms eating well and being active can make a dramatic difference in the quality of life for older adults.

You are never too old to enjoy the benefits of improved nutrition and fitness. With nutrient-rich foods and activities with friends, you can feel an immediate difference in your energy levels and enjoyment of life. In fact, as we get older, our food and activity choices become even more important to our health.

Focus on Nutrient Density

As adults age, we need fewer total calories, but higher amounts of some nutrients, especially calcium and vitamin D. In terms of nutrition, you need to focus on quality not quantity. For both optimal physical and mental health, older adults truly need to make every calorie count.

Retired people on limited incomes may have trouble buying enough nutrient-rich foods to meet all their nutritional needs. If this is a problem for you or someone you love, explore the options for senior meal sites, Meals on Wheels or supplemental nutrition assistance programs in your community.

The golden years definitely are not the time for extreme diets or drastic weight loss. Your goal should be to eat better while staying within your calorie needs. Rapid weight loss often leads to a loss of lean body mass, exactly the opposite of what older people need for good health.

Aim for a stable weight as you get older. If you want to lose a few pounds, talk to your healthcare provider or a registered dietitian about the best plan for you. The right balance of foods and activities can help you maintain strong muscles and bones.

Enjoy the Power of Protein

People of all ages need protein for strong, healthy bodies. Some older adults do not get the protein they need to maintain muscle mass, fight infection and recover from an accident or surgery. Talk to a health-care provider or a registered dietitian for additional protein options.

5 Ways to Eat Healither This Month

GO, GO, H2O!

We all know drinking water helps in nearly every aspect of wellness, but drinking the recommended amount of water per day can be tough. Electrolyte additives offer the same, if not better benefits than drinking six or more glasses of water a day would.

Choose Food Over Supplements

Though there are some who sincerely lack certain vitamins and minerals that can't be achieved through diet alone, most of the good things our bodies need come from food — not store-bought supplements. Research shows that certain supplements haven't been tested to meet many purity and safety standards, making them unreliable sources of nutrition.

Opt for Color

When in doubt, throw some color on your plate — natural color, that is. Bright greens from crunchy vegetables or vibrant reds from tangy fruit will not only make your meal Instagram-worthy, they'll give you a healthy boost.

Pack Your Lunch

Avoiding typical restaurant or fast-food grease may seem obvious, but according to Harvard Health Publishing, even more important than that is the ability to control portion sizes when you pack your own lunch.

Shop the Perimeter

Shopping a supermarket's outside aisles ensures that you're getting healthy alternatives to processed foods like produce, meat, and dairy. When you move inward, most, if not all, of the products contain unnecessary additives and sugar.

Colorectal cancer is the third most commonly diagnosed cancer and the second leading cause of cancer death in men and women combined in the United States.

When discovered early, it is highly treatable. Even if it spreads into nearby lymph nodes, surgical treatment followed by chemotherapy is highly effective.

Risk Factors:

- Smoke or use tobacco
- Overweight or obese
- · Not physically active
- Drink alcohol in excess
- · Eat a lot of red meat
- Have a personal or family history of colorectal cancer or benign (not cancerous) colorectal polyps
- Have a personal or family history of inflammatory bowel disease

Prevention:

- Be physically active
- Maintain a healthy weight and waist size
- Don't smoke
- Limit alcohol to no more than one drink per day
- Eat more fruits, vegetables and whole grains
- Eat less red meat and cut out processed meat
- Get screened according to guidelines

Colorectal cancer almost always develops from precancerous polyps (abnormal growths) in the colon or rectum. Screening tests can find precancerous polyps, so that they can be removed before they turn into cancer. Screening tests can also find colorectal cancer early, when treatment works best. Regular screening is the key to preventing colorectal cancer and finding it early. Most people should begin screening for colorectal cancer soon after turning 45, then continue getting screened at regular intervals.

Contact your SFP primary care physician at 785-336-6107 today to discuss your screening test options.

Make Self-Care a Priority

Self-care at the simplest level is making sure that you are doing the things that you need to do in order to stay healthy physically and mentally. Caring for yourself is an active choice that you need to make every day that prioritizes your own health and happiness.

There are a lot of significant health benefits that come from making physical self-care a priority. Regular exercise will help you keep your muscles strong, reduce stress and help with weight management. According to medical studies taking the time for regular exercise can have any or all of these effects on your physical health:

- · Better sleep
- Lower risk of heart attack
- · Lower stress levels
- Stronger bones
- · Better cardiovascular health
- Lower cholesterol
- Reduce risk of some kinds of cancer
- Lower risk of diabetes and insulin resistance
- Better circulation
- Better mood

Mental self-care means giving yourself a break from the worries and stresses that you have to deal with all day long so that you can relax, clear your mind and focus. Taking regular mental health breaks for self-care can help you manage the symptoms of conditions like depression and anxiety and for some people can get rid of those symptoms entirely. Meditation, journaling, making art and pursuing hobbies are all things that you can do to practice mental self-care.

If you're struggling with your self-care options please contact your SFP primary care physician at 785-336-6107 today.
